Baseball Stirred to Its Depth by Strike of the Tigers.

WHERE THE FAULT LIES

News and Views on Live Topics of the Day, Both Amateur and Professional.

By Cobb, baseball player extraordinary, has stirred up a pretty mess in the American League for the loss of his temper at American League Park on Thursday, when he ran up in the grandstand and thrashed an onlooker who had been abusing him. On the other hand, he expressed himself as being sorry for his action, but later, on being suspended indefinitely by Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American League, he declared that the punishment was an injustice, coming as it did without a hearing. On top of this his teammates rallied to his support and challenged the authority of the chief executive of the league by threatening to strike unless the suspension was lifted forthwith. To complicate the situation, they stood firm and refused to take the field against the Athletics on Saturday. And the end is not yet.

Cobb no doubt would have had good reason under ordinary circumstances to take the law into his own hands, but he could have appealed to the umpire in chief, and through him to the club, for protection. In view of this, it is impossible to condemn his offense or offer a word in extenuation without jeopardizing the best interests of the great national game. I agree with Mr. Johnson that there can be no justification for a player climbing up in a stand and chastising a spectator, even though the spectator was fully deserving of a sound thrashing, while there was recourse to other measures. Under the circumstances Cobb deserved punishment, if for no other reason than to establish a precedent and to prevent, if possible, a repetition of the offense. If Cobb had been excused in this case it would have opened the way to any other player following his example and the restraint so necessary in the conduct of clean baseball would have been weakened, if not entirely destroyed.

Cobb is not altogether responsible for the disgraceful scene on Wednesday. The New York club deserves a share of the blame for not seeing that the special officers did their full duty in protecting those who pay to see a baseball game and not a free fight, to say nothing of protecting the players, who also are deserving of consideration. The action of the Detroit players in striking was ill-timed, in my opinion. They should have been more forbidding if less excited and hasty. The practice in baseball of imposing indefinite punishment for offenses on the field is a bad one, and should be corrected. It is unfair to the player and to the club, and serves no good end. Cobb had been suspended for a definite time, say two weeks, which would have been different. The present unhappy situation might not have been precipitated. One thing is settled, the clubs must protect the players, and baseball opinion will support the players in a way to make a revolt something to be feared and dreaded.

With the money to send a representative team of athletes to this country to the Olympic games at Stockholm, Sweden, commencing in all too slowly it would be a graceful thing if the owners of the various clubs in the National and American leagues would accept the suggestion to set aside one day in the near future on which a certain percentage of the receipts would be donated to the fund. It is quite possible that such a move would attract more than enough additional onlookers, so that it would cost the clubs little or nothing, while earning for them much good will. The time is rather short, as it would necessitate much red tape to get the consent of all owners, but I am told that an effort will be made.

The Yankees are pretty far down, but there is some comfort, cold though it may be, that they are only three or four games behind the world's champions. There is some consolation, anyway, in sharing the misery of others.

Such work as the Giants have been doing in the West, and really since the season opened, is causing wonder even from those who have the utmost confidence in McGraw and his men to win another National League pennant. The Cincinnati Reds are deserving of equal credit. They have right checked the New York Tribune, rated the playing strength of the college teams as follows: Yale, Princeton, Brown, Pennsylvania, Holy Cross, Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth, Williams, Columbia and Amherst.

Most anybody is welcome to my self-imposed task of trying to rate the leading college baseball teams. Why I should continue to struggle over the puzzle is beyond comprehension. The only reward is some stinging, sarcastic letters from the followers of those teams who think that my judgment is unsound and my reasoning bad. Two weeks ago I carefully explained that I was not rating the teams, but simply expressing an opinion of their relative strength, but in spite of this I have had a score of letters objecting to my "ranking," while even "The Cornell Daily Sun" would not accept me at my word and said in the issue of May 13:

"Cornell baseball team has risen considerably since the defeat of the well-balanced Princeton and Brown nines. A week ago, however, of The New York Tribune, rated the playing strength of the college teams as follows: Yale, Princeton, Brown, Pennsylvania, Holy Cross, Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth, Williams, Columbia and Amherst."

Play Stirring Matches in Quest of Bronx Title

Osterdorf, Grant and Rosenbaum All Advance Into Fourth Round of Tourney.

Fast and furious lawn tennis brought three more of the aspirants for the Bronx championship cup into the fourth round of the singles yesterday on the courts of the Belford Park Lawn Tennis Club. The most stirring was that in which A. J. Osterdorf defeated Robert Louis James, the Philadelphia, at 6-1, 5-7, 6-3. It was the only contest between ranking men which went the limit of three sets on the day's card. Wylie C. Grant in coming through had no difficulty in defeating F. R. Knapp, 6-1, 6-2. Dr. William Rosenbaum was the victor of the trio to advance, and he had to work for every point before he disposed of E. Osterdorf by a score of 6-4, 6-1.

Robert Roosevelt Pell, the former national indoor champion, was on hand, but only got a try-out match against G. P. Raymond, as G. Meseroud, of the University Heights club, his opponent, failed to appear. Not one of the players entered from that club appeared, and so the referee chalked up defaults.

The performance of A. J. Osterdorf stood out above all else. In turn he won his first match, first defeating R. T. Wilson, 6-1, 6-1, then he eliminated George S. Grossbeck, 6-2, 6-1, finishing up with the

BOXING BOUTS OF WEEK SUPERBAS DEFEAT CUBS

Bombardier Wells Visits Burns—Gibbons Not Overconfident.

Boxing "fans" who went up to Rye, N. Y., yesterday to look over Sid Burns, the crack British welterweight who boxes Mike Gibbons in the Garden to-morrow night, were favorably impressed. Burns, who is working like a day laborer, was visited by Bombardier Wells and boxed several rounds with Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion.

In fighting tops Burns displayed remarkable physique, and with the gloves on he showed both speed and skill. He is a two-larred fighter, with a stiff punch in either fist. His trainer, Dia Hollings, who has made a careful study of Gibbons, said:

"If Burns doesn't put Gibbons on the defensive with his powerful rushing tactics I will be greatly surprised. The only way that Gibbons is to force the fight and stay with him at close quarters. Burns is a boxer and slugger combined. He is one of the pluckiest men I've ever handled, and he isn't even nervous as to the outcome of this fight. In my opinion Gibbons is a bit overrated. He never whipped a first class man, and he has refused to make a match with Ray Branson, who has beaten Carpenter in fifteen rounds, and he was entitled to better than a draw, but there was no referee's decision in that contest. Burns is going to fight Gibbons on the jump. If Sid wins he will get a fortune. If he loses Gibbons will have to fight better than he did with Jeff Smith. I had Smith up here boxing with Matt Wells before the McFarland left, and I know that Burns could knock left out if they should come together."

Gibbons attracted a large crowd at the New Polo Athletic Association, including "Paddy" McFarland, who left for Chicago last night. Gibbons believes he will win, but he expects a stubborn resistance, as he has received some valuable pointers as to Burns' prowess. He will enter the ring to meet Young Solberg in a ten-round bout at the Royale Athletic Club on May 25. Burns is not a whit discouraged over his defeat at the hands of Kilbane, and still contends that he will come along just the same. Burns has little to regret in his battle with the champion. He made a good, game fight, and took punishment that would have caused nine out of ten men to hunt the shelter of the canvas long before the final bell clanged.

The bubble of $15,000 for a ten-round match between Johnny Kilbane and "Knockout" Brown was effectively pricked by the McMahon brothers, who declared that $10,000 was their limit, and that Kilbane, as champion, would get the larger share of the purse. Johnny Dundee, who was originally matched with the champion, has been rematched for June 11.

While the Garden Athletic Club has deemed it necessary to hold their entertainment on Tuesday evening this week, the McMahon brothers have arranged a particularly attractive bout for the St. Nicholas Athletic Club. Three ten-round contests will be held. Leach Cross will meet Paddy Sullivan; Johnny Dundee will face Paddy Haggerty, and Paddy Kilne will box Young Shugrue.

The bouts of the week follow: Young Cohen vs. Jim Flynn, at the Olympic Club, of Harlem; Young Bielew vs. Eddie McDonald, at the Longacre Athletic Club; Tuesday night, all-star show at Brown's Gymnasium; Wednesday night, Gumbat Smith vs. George Wigner, at the Sharkey Club; Terry McGraw vs. Freddie Duffy, and Young Driscoll against some good boy at the Royale Club, and Willie Beecher vs. Phil Cross, at the New Star Athletic Club Thursday night, Joe Coster vs. Eddie O'Keefe at the National Sporting Club of America.

GIANTS LOSE THE LEAD

Cincinnati Forges to Front by Defeating New York Nine.

AMES WEAKENS IN TENTH

Suggs Pitches Sterling Ball in the Pinches and Holds Visitors in Check.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Cincinnati, May 19.—While 30,000 persons, the greatest crowd that ever attended a ball game in this city, looked on, the Cincinnati Reds regained the lead in the National League pennant race by defeating the Giants in a sensational ten-inning game at Redland Park this afternoon. The score was 4 to 3. The Giants got off on the jump, and took the lead by scoring three runs in the fourth inning with a good old-fashioned batting line. Leon Ames pitched with skill in the early stages, but the strain told on the New York pitcher and in the final frame he weakened. The Reds took quick advantage of the opportunity. Three crashing singles rang out in rapid succession and brought home the winning run.

The crowd was betting the new home of the pennant contenders. The seating capacity of the park is close to 25,000, but it was not sufficient to contain the stream of rooters who passed the stream of the grandstand and bleachers to watch the battle. The bleachers were filled early, and one hour before the game was called the sale of seats was stopped. Half an hour before time was called every seat and available inch of space was crowded, and the "fans" overflowed on the field and made ground rules necessary.

Frank Suggs, the "Matty of the West," officiated on the mound for the Reds. While he was hit twice, he managed to turn on the screws in times of peril, with the single exception of the fourth inning, when he allowed his opponents four hits, including a double by "Red" Murray. Ten safeties in all were made by the visitors.

Suggs was in many tight places. In the second inning he had the bases filled, with only one out, but he retired the hard hitting Chief Meyers and caused Leon Ames to hit the ball to Edmond. Again in the eighth inning he pulled out nicely. Herzog opened with a single and took the keystone sack on a sacrifice bunt by Fletcher, but there he remained, for Suggs fanned Meyers and Ames floated one to Severod. Ames was hit freely throughout the game and allowed a dozen hits, but in the tenth inning he showed his mettle. He escaped serious damage, backed up by some sensational fielding, in which Murray and Snodgrass played a conspicuous part. He felt the strain, however, and his one lapse was sufficient to lose the game, and with it the premier position in the league.

The first scoring proposition of the Reds was advanced in the third inning, when Severod whaled the ball far over the head of Fred Snodgrass. Two runs batted in, and when Hollister drove a long fly to Murray. They brought home a run in the following frame on a base on balls to Pheasant and singles by Edmond and Suggs.

The Giants filed a quick reply to the challenge of the Reds. In the fourth inning they scored in state when Merkle hit right for a single. Herzog was hit by a pitched ball, and Fletcher's bunt was handled so slowly by Suggs that the bases were filled when Chief Meyers gripped his trusty war club and stalked to the plate. The redskin's medicine was "good," and when Severod stopped running for his far flung single to right center both Merkle and Herzog dug their cleats into the rubber. So ended the scoring by New York.
